All mutual funds, regardless of performance, must distribute to shareholders any net realized gains from the sale of portfolio investments. Generally speaking, market appreciation increases the likelihood that a fund will distribute capital gains. There is the potential that a fund will pay a capital gain distribution during a year of negative or market neutral performance. Past distributions are not indicative of future trends.

A Fund's closing Net Asset Value (NAV) on the ex-dividend date will be reduced by the amount of the distribution, plus or minus any market activity for the day. Please consult your tax advisor for information specific to your particular situation.

Multi-manager and multi-style management may lead to overlapping securities transactions and higher transaction expenses compared to single investment management styles.
